TRADITION

TRADITION AND CULTURE OF CANADA

- Canadian holidays may be either political or religious. The major celebrations include two religious holidays:
- Christmas, 25th December; and Easter, which varies from year to year.
- There are five main political celebrations:
- Canada's Day, 1st July; New Year's Day, 1 st january; Victoria Day, which honours Queen Victoria of England and varies from year to year; Labour's Day and Thanksgiving, in October.

CANADIAN TRADITIONS AND IMMIGRATION

The different ethnic groups in the many Canadian districts have their own traditions so determining those which are common throughout the country as a whole is a difficult task.

Canadian tradition were brought over the centuries by its millions of immigrants and their customs were mixed successfully with those already established by the indigenous people.

Some are shared with the USA, like the celebration of Thanksgiving, held on the first Monday of October, Christmas, only that Canadians will commemorate it in a particular way.

CANADA TRADITIONS THROUGH ITS PROVINCES

Different provinces have their particular manners:

In Nova Scotia, the masked people or Belsnicklers are characters that walk through the streets in December demanding treats while ringing bells, distributing candy to the children.
